RAINFALL FOR 24 HOURS 3:42 INCHES

Water Fell in Torrents All Day Yesterday, Though Winds Were Not Very High.

Yesterday was indeed a gloomy day in Pensacola. The rain which had been falling all the night before and all of Wednesday afternoon, continued throughout the day and the rain fell from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., was 2.61 inches, with the rainfall of 81 inches which fell during the previous night, this makes a total rainfall of 3.42 inches for the 24 hours ending at 7 o'clock last night.

The high winds continued also, and the storm signals were changed yesterday morning from northeast to southeast warnings. At the last reading of the barometer at 7 o'clock last night the barometer registered 29.17. The wind, however, only reached 29 miles an hour during the day from the east, while during Wednesday night it reached 32 miles an hour from the east.

The following bulletin was issued by the local weather bureau yesterday morning:

"Washington, Sept. 28.—10:30 a. m.—Change to southeast storm warning: Mobile, Pensacola, Apalachicola, Carabelle, Cedar Keys, Dunnellon, Tampa, Punta Gorda, Punta Rasa. Disturbance approaching the mouth of the Mississippi. Light east to southeast winds will continue tonight and probably Friday. Considered unsafe for vessels to navigate gulf waters."

The wind will probably howl in Pensacola tonight and, according to the forecast, will be accompanied by rain. The forecast reads: "For Pensacola and vicinity and for West Florida—Rain tonight and Friday; brisk to high northeast winds drifting to northwest."

Weather Conditions.
The Gulf storm still appears to be central off the Louisiana coast with a pressure of 29.74 inches and brisk to high northeast winds from Pensacola to Galveston. Rain is falling at New Orleans, Mobile, Pensacola and Meridian, being excessive at New Orleans and Port Eads. Rain is also falling in Nevada and Washington, under the influence of decidedly low pressure of 29.44 inches at Modena, Utah, and Yellowstone Park, accompanied by much higher temperatures. The barometer has remained high in the Ohio Valley and Middle Atlantic States, where the temperature has risen above the 50 mark; the coolest at morning observation time was 40 at Winnemucca, Nev. Clear skies prevail from Utah and Wyoming to North Carolina, Virginia and New York.

The Formation of Clouds.
Clouds are simply a form of water made visible by the cooling of the air which previously held the water in the form of invisible vapor. Every cloud may be regarded as the top of an invisible warm column or current thrusting its way into a colder body of air. The comparative altitude of a cloud may be judged when there is no time or opportunity to make exact measurements from its form and outline, its shape or shadow, its apparent size and movement, its perspective effect and the length of time it remains directly illuminated after sunset. By the last method some clouds have been estimated to have been at least ten miles above the surface of the earth. The cloud velocities at high altitudes have been carefully noted and show practically that at about five miles in height the velocities are three times as fast in summer and six times in winter as the velocities of the currents on the earth's surface.

Panama Hats.
"Talking about expensive hats," said a prominent New York hat dealer, "the most costly hat that was ever made was presented to General Grant while in Mexico in 1862. It cost $1,500 in gold. It is now in the National Museum at Washington. Panama hats used to be frequently sold as high as $500 each. I remember selling four hats at that price in a single day in 1872, but such hats are no longer to be obtained. Such hats are still worn by the hidalgoes in South America. They are not made in Panama, but got the name because that city was formerly the greatest market for them. The finest hats come from Peru. They are made of the fiber of the pita or pineapple plant, which is as soft and pliable as silk, and some of them are so fine that they can be folded up and carried in one's vest pocket."

TARPON WILL TAKE CARGO AT MOBILE

SHE IS REQUIRED TO LAY FIVE DAYS IN QUARANTINE THERE BEFORE ENTERING.

The steamer Tarpon which has had considerable trouble since the present quarantine went into effect, will be in Mobile today.

She is required to stay five days in quarantine before she can enter at Mobile, and her time limit expires to-day as she entered quarantine station at Mobile last Sunday night.

The Tarpon will take on a cargo at Mobile and will proceed from there to Carrabelle, Millville, Apalachicola and St. Andrews, after which she will return to Pensacola. After finishing at Pensacola she will again start for Mobile and again enter quarantine for the required five days.

Of course, this is working a hardship on her, but she will continue with this arrangement until a change in quarantine matter can be made.

Humor in Men and Women.

There can be no doubt that women have less sense of humor than men. Much humor in a woman is rare and remarkable. The love of approbation is as common among women as humor among men, and as rare among men as humor among women. The temptation to the unparaphrasing thing which, quite apart from dislike or anger, at times seems to attack the masculine mind seldom occurs to them, and when it does it denotes not, as in men, a mere ebullience of the spirit of independence, but a real want of benevolence going down to the roots of the nature. Most women would rather be liked by every one; very many wish for, and a few actually crave, approbation.—London Spectator.

Unnecessary Noises.

Noise is easily misinterpreted as a sign of vigorous enterprise in all lines of human activity. There is a bustle of trade which no one would suppress. The loudest shout is not by any means the most accomplished and effective orator. The best work may be done without great clamor and uproar. Noise is commonly associated with the fair, who covers the pinchbeck quality of his wares by stridently proclaiming their virtues. Much of the noise of the city street is entirely unnecessary and could be suppressed without injury to any material interest. A society for the prevention of din would find a fertile field for its beneficent offices.—Philadelphia Ledger.

EARTHQUAKES IN ENGLAND.

They Have Been Noted From the Times of the Romans.

Earthquakes of varying severity have been felt in England from the times of the Romans down to the twentieth century. One of the earliest English earthquakes is said to have overthrown a Roman temple to Apollo in London. Another happened in 1100, when, in the language of an old historian, "strange it was for the strong trembling of the earth, but more strange for the doleful and hideous roaring which it yielded forth." Thirty-three years later several shocks were felt, during one of which, it is asserted, flames issued from rents in the earth and burned much timber. In the Easter week of 1185 another earth tremor put in an appearance and seems to have been more demonstrative than its predecessors, for a writer says that "its like had not been heard of in England since the beginning of the world, for stones that lay couched fast in the earth were removed and the great church of Lincoln rent from the top downward."

Panic followed the earthquake of April 6, 1580, a day remarkable for its heat. Nothing untoward took place until 9 o'clock at night, when a violent trembling of the earth made itself felt in London, lasting about the tenth of a second, and was accompanied by loud rumblings in the bowels of the earth. Close upon its heels came another shock, which set the great clock bell at Westminster clanging, and many other churches gave out violent peals. The public took fright and rushed into the streets, while playgoers hastily left their seats, with the result that many of them were trampled to death. A writer on the subject says: "The scene was terrible. The clanging of the bells, the subterranean noises and the noise of falling houses, the shrieks and lamentations of the people, mingled with the cries of those who thought the last day had come was enough to fill the stoutest hearts with fear." The shock was also experienced in various parts of the country. The impression took shape that this earthquake had occurred because heaven had lost patience with the people, a belief which led Queen Elizabeth to institute a form of prayer for household use in order to remove the same supposed to be hovering over Great Britain.

In January and the early part of February, 1750, the heat was intense, so much so that the superstitious went about declaring that something out of the ordinary would surely soon happen. Their forecasts came true, for on Feb. 8 London experienced slight earthquake shocks, but more severe shocks were felt exactly a month later. These latter are said to have been the worst disturbances in modern times in England. The shocks were preceded by lightning, then a roaring sound was heard, houses reeled and many fell, and some little damage was done to ancient buildings. These vibrations took place in the night, and many people were thrown from their beds.
